FRENCH CUT

owned a French tourist.

These are the regulations that affect the average Frenchman, but they are of secondary importance in the government's fight to keep the franc at home.

The franc firmed up when Europe's foreign exchanges reopened Monday and trading in it was generally cautious. But bankers and dealers emphasized that one day's trading was no indication of whether De Gaulle would win his stubborn fight against devaluation.

The question of exports is a major one in the program Couve de Murville and his advisers put together to shore up France's finances at home. After many years of export surpluses, France is now importing slightly more than she sells.

While exports increased 20.8 percent in the last year, imports increased by 24.8 percent.

Since the student-worker rebellion in May, some protective tariffs of one and three per cent have been in effect to hinder imports and help exports. France's partners in the Common Market do not like them and probably will be unwilling to approve their renewal when they come

Cargo Plane

Probe Is Demanded

By JOE HALL

Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The Defense Department and the General Accounting Office were asked today to undertake full-scale investigations of why the C5A cargo plane—backbone of airlift planning for the next decade—may cost $1.2 billion more than original estimates.

The demand was made by Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., chairman of the Senate House Economic Committee that recently heard testimony on contract overruns for the world's largest airplane.

It would be a dereliction of duty, said Proxmire, for Congress to permit payment "of such an exorbitant increase in contract costs without scrutinizing the reasons given for the increase and, indeed, the entire circumstances."

"In view of the testimony we received in our hearings," the senator said, "very serious questions about the cost of the plane have been raised. For example, there is some evidence that poor management on the part of the contractor may be a significant cause of the increase in cost."

Earlier this month the Air Force said the price of the C5A could run $2 billion over original estimates of $3 billion for the first 120 planes. Later, however, "in response to queries," the Air Force put the figure at a more conservative $1.2 billion.

At the same time, the Pentagon said the C5A contract provides safeguards for the government and for Lockheed Aircraft Corp., maker of the frame, and General Electric Co., which makes the engines.

The higher price tag for the four-engine behemoth has been attributed to increased costs for labor and materials, introduction of new technology and unexpected technical troubles.

The C5A is designed to carry troops as well as big equipment like tanks and trucks. The first model flew last spring and the Pentagon has maintained the craft will exceed performance guarantees of Lockheed.

Proxmire asked the General Accounting Office, spending watchdog for Congress, to report to him within six weeks.

At the same time, he wrote to Secretary of Defense Clark M. Clifford urging Clifford to direct personally a study of "the enormous cost overruns."

In his letter to Comptroller General Elmer B. Staats, head of the GAO, the senator said "the option under which the Department of Defense could obligate itself to pay as much as $2 billion in excessive costs is due to be exercised by January 31, 1969."

"I am formally requesting that you take whatever steps may be necessary to prevent the signing of this option before your report is made to the Congress."

The senator wrote Clifford he hoped "you will instruct the responsible officials in the Department of Defense to give their fullest cooperation with the GAO investigating team, and that your own task force study group will make an objective and comprehensive study as soon as possible."

before the economic community for review in January.

Couve de Murville also has to contend with consumer prices that seem to grow daily, devaluing the franc domestically for the French worker if not on the international money market.

But all she did was what he asked her to—she married him. He did all the rest.

GOP THINKS

Commission, 13 years ago, led to modifications of the executive branch resulting in savings of $7 billion.

The commission Pearson referred to was the second such panel headed by former President Herbert Hoover. The first functioned from 1947 to 1949.

Together they suggested a massive reorganization of the federal government, submitting 587 recommendations for change of which 396 were adopted by Congress or the executive branch.

Among the major results were the Military Unification Act of 1949 and the Defense Reorganization Act of 1958, complete internal reorganization of the State Department, creation of the 10th federal agency—Health, Education and Welfare—and adoption of a new, business-type system of federal budgeting.

Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower suggested during his second term that there was a need for another massive attack-to-cellar exploration of the federal government structure. But there has been nothing like the Hoover Commissions since 1955.

"If the quality of American life is to be preserved, we must begin now to examine the bureaucratic thicket that has sprung up in the last 13 years," Pearson said.

Pearson said the field of grant-in-aid programs is "a prime example of what can happen when project growth is loosely controlled."

He said "in April 1964 there were approximately 239 such programs. Today there are over 400. And the administration predicted that these programs may quadruple in five years."

Pearson said 70 departments and agencies report directly to the president—"far in excess of any reasonable span of executive control."

Still another example of the need for reform, said Pearson, is that "at present there are approximately 33 federal agencies engaged in 296 consumer protection activities."

Murder Charge at Lewisville

Court Refuses to Block Suit Against A&M

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Supreme Court refused Monday to block a suit by H. Brent Davis of Orange, Tex., who says he was dismissed by Arkansas A&M College because he promoted prison reform.

Atty. Gen. Joe Purcell of Arkansas told the court that Davis was fired by the college in October 1965 "for the inept way in which he conducted his class."

U.S. District Court Judge Oren Harris of Eldorado, Ark., and the U.S. 8 Circuit Court of Appeals in St. Louis refused to grant the college immunity from Davis' suit. Purcell filed the appeal after the action by the lower courts.

Davis filed the suit at El Dorado. He contended that the Board of Trustees of the college and Claude H. Baubin, president, fired him because he had circulated petitions protesting the use of the strap in the Arkansas prison system.

The suit asks for $25,000 damages and back pay.

Babin and the trustees contended that they were immune from a suit by Davis under the 11th Amendment because they were agents for the state.

Farmers Fear Slight in Constitution

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — Several Arkansas farmers and farm organization officials said Monday they feared the drafters of a new state constitution might slight farmers.

The remarks were made by persons attending the convention of the Farm Bureau Federation, the only statewide organization to oppose the calling of a constitutional convention.

"I think our present constitution is too good an instrument to discard completely," said C.C. Adams, 81, who owns a tree farm near Camden. "There are too many good features to run the risk of having them deleted in a new constitution."

Adams said there are defects in the present constitution, which was written in 1874, but that they should be corrected through the amendment process.

Lehman Fowler, 43, who operates a rice and soybean farm near Brinkley, said he was afraid the new constitution, which will be presented to the voters in 1970, would be tied up in the courts for several years.

"What I'm really afraid of is that a good constitution will be written only to have it turned down because some groups are opposed to one or more sections," Fowler said.

Mrs. J. H. Carroll Jr., 37, of Brinkley, vice chairman of the Arkansas Farm Bureau Women's Committee, said she was not opposed to the writing of a new constitution.

"But I can't say at this time that I won't be opposed to some sections after it is drafted," she said. "There always is the need for more money. Rural people recognize this."

The Texas senator said Nixon would like "geographical balance" in the Cabinet but would not sacrifice other considerations to parceling out appointments on a regional basis.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits of New York was another visitor who acknowledged talking to Nixon about specific jobs and specific possible officeholders. Like Tower, he wouldn't mention any names but offered this teasing comment:

"I happen to be the senior senator from a state with an awful lot of talent."

Javits, recently returned from a European tour, said Nixon specifically authorized him to eral Paris talks into a four-way affair.

Thieu, however, refused to join the talks that were scheduled to start Nov. 6. He objected to the possibility that direct talks with the National Liberation Front—political arm of the Viet Cong guerrillas—would give the appearance of heading toward a coalition government in the South.

He also insisted Saigon delegates head the U.S.-South Vietnam team.

Thieu and U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker have been drafting an agreement, taking it word by word, Washington officials said.

These discussions, they said, have reached the point where an announcement is considered imminent.

Reports that Saigon is near agreement to join the talks came after a day of activity in Washington.

President Johnson met with Secretary of State Dean Rusk and then with the National Security Council, comprised of the top presidential military, diplomatic and intelligence aides. A White House spokesman said no special events required the meeting.

Rusk later met with Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin who is scheduled to return shortly to Moscow for consultations.

Johnson had been expected to enter the hospital momentarily for a checkup on a chronic intestinal disorder. It was not clear whether the visit had been delayed or just not firmly scheduled yet.

After President Johnson halted the bombing of the North last month, Hanoi agreed to four-sided talks in Paris with North Vietnam and the NLF on one side of the table and Saigon and the United States on the other.

Thieu objected to considering the talks four sided with the NLF having equal status. The U.S. has considered the proposed talks as two-sided the "our side, your side" principle that avoids an appearance of direct dealings between Saigon and the NLF.

Javits talked to Harriman and Vance while in Paris and said they are pushing their peace quest "without waiting for the new administration."

He said he found Europeans deeply interested in the achievement of a Vietnam peace.

Return to the Islands Different

EDITOR'S NOTE: William H. Hipple, now western director of public relations for American Airlines, was The Associated Press star correspondent on the beach at Tarawa atoll in the Western Pacific Ocean when the arduous landed 25 years ago. He returned to Tarawa this week to commemorate the anniversary.

TARAWA, Gilbert Islands (AP) — Exactly 25 years later we came ashore to this lonely atoll astride the Equator in the mid-Pacific where 5,800 men had died for their beliefs in four days of vicious fighting.

This time we were met by happy, dancing Gilbertese natives in grass skirts and flowered print clothing and piled with freshly cut coconuts filled with sweet cool milk. White clad British officials welcomed us with handshakes and bows.

A few of these people were the same. Our party of five, who had been on the original 221st edition, was led by Gen. David M. Shoup, former commandant of the U.S. Marines and Medal of Honor winner for his heroic leadership on this island.

Gen. Shoup came out of retirement for eight days to represent the United States at formal ceremonies commemorating the 25th anniversary of the assault of Marine and naval forces against this Japanese-held fortress.

The plaque which Gen. Shoup dedicated at the end of the pier on Betio, the tiny one-half square mile island of this atoll where the assault took place, says, "This was the first American assault against a fortified atoll — the testing ground for Marine amphibious doctrine and techniques that paved the way for the island campaigns that followed and saved thousands of American lives along the road to victory in the Pacific."

Of course, it could not tell the full story of the 1,087 U.S. Marines killed and 2,292 wounded, and 4,690 Japanese dead.

British, Australian, New Zealand and Gilbert and Ellice Island officials participated with Gen. Shoup and U.S. Vice Consul Peter Maher from Fiji in the dedication of the monument. Honor guards from the U.S. destroyer escort Mimoris, the native constabulary of the Gilbert Islands and delegations of local Girl and Boy Scouts, schools and native organizations stood at attention. Crowded on the pier were some 5,000 Gilbertese, solemn and colorful in their native dress.

Virtually unnoticed in the crowd was Capt. Unio Suenaga of the Japanese trading ship the "Fiji Maru." By chance the vessel had arrived at Betio the day before — the first Japanese ship to visit here in 25 years. Capt. Suenaga was invited to the ceremony, where he stood, unsmiling and at attention.

The day before held the greatest thrill for those of us who had been there. We flew in over Tarawa from Kwajalein, circling the 30-mile long series of islets twice in our C-130 Hercules turboprop flown by Maj. Marvin Mann of Goshen, Ind.

As we came over little Betio, Gen. Shoup, peering from a portfolio, exclaimed, "My God, look at those thousands of palm trees. There were only a couple left intact when we left here."

There is a new pier on Betio now, built close to the one on which or nearby so many Marines died. As we approached by sea, there were three amphibious tractors rusting on the reef. On the other side of the pier, we saw several LVTs — landing vehicle tanks — still resting there. Farther out was the bulk of a Japanese freighter which we remembered so well. Japanese troops had fired from it on the first morning inflicting heavy casualties on boats trying to get over the reef and on men wading ashore.

Our launch crept slowly down the right of the pier on the exact route I had taken to shore with the second wave of the 2nd Battalion, 2nd Marine Regiment on the morning Nov. 26, 1943. Under murderous fire, our battalion commander, Lt. Col. Herbert R. Ames, had been shot through the head a few feet from me as we waded in after our amtrack was hit.

This time we were met at the beach by the British district commissioner, R.E.N. Smith. He led us back on the pier to display the 20-foot monument

THE DOCTOR SAYS Americans Have Much To Be Thankful For

By WAYNE G. BRANDSTADT, M.D.

The Pilgrims who first celebrated Thanksgiving some 245 years ago had lived through a very trying period. Colonists who settled in Massachusetts were weakened by physical hardships and a shortage of food. As a result, half of them died of tuberculosis, pneumonia and typhoid. Those who pulled through considered themselves very fortunate to be alive.

We, too, are living in troubled times but we still have much to be thankful for. Although raging epidemics and starvation no longer plague us, they are still unwelcome facts of life for much of the world's population. As new ways to combat disease are discovered and applied, a rapid increase in the sheer number of the world's inhabitants makes the specter of starvation an ever-present threat.

If, at the present rate of growth, the world's population doubles in the next 40 years, the threat of protein deficiency will extend to every continent and will reduce our resistance to all infections.

Along with our thankfulness for our present abundance, let us be thankful for those among us who are showing concern about the future health of our children, those who are studying ways to make leaf protein an important and acceptable article of diet, those who are putting tropical rain forests to productive use, those who are finding ways to extract food from the sea and those who are extending irrigation to desert areas. In the spirit of the Pilgrims they will, let us hope, find an answer to our many problems and, perhaps, even an alternative to war.

Q—What could make me thirsty most of the time? Tests show that I don't have diabetes.

which the British have erected on their own volition. The British plaque, to be dedicated with the U.S. plaque the following day, said, "In memory of those who fell—November 1943."

Gen. Shoup was anxious to find his old command post, a Japanese bunker laced with concrete, steel and coconut tree logs, near Red Beach Two, right of the pier, where he had established headquarters that first morning as commander of the 2nd Regiment 2nd Marine Division.

The bunker had been leveled but we all agreed that was the spot. We also remembered the then Col. Shoup's message from that spot to Gen. Julian Smith's headquarters on board the battleship Maryland the second afternoon: "Casualties: many. Percentage dead: not known. Combat efficiency: we are winning."

When the expert gets into a hole he frequently is lucky enough to be able to dig his way out.

South had a good 14 points for his opening diamond bid and was tempted to try a stronger rebid than one no-trump. The fact that his distribution was the flat 4-3-3-3 deterred him.

North had plenty of distribution but no cards to go with it. His jump to three diamonds was a decided overbid, his follow up to five considerably more of the same.

South thought about bidding six. Not that he had any particular reason to think about it, merely that he assumed his partner had been inviting him to go on.

West opened a diamond. South looked over dummy carefully because he felt that there ought to be just a little more of a hand. Then he saw that there was some sort of play for his contract.

All he needed was a favorable break in the spade suit, plus no really bad breaks anywhere else.

East won the first trick with the ace of diamonds and returned his small trump. When West followed, trumps had behaved properly and it was up to the spades.

South won in dummy, led a spade and finessed his 10. West was in with the queen and led the queen of hearts. South won in dummy and finessed the jack of spades against East's king.

This worked and things were looking up. He needed just one more break. He cried, "All together, boys," and played his ace of spades. The king dropped and all was well with the overbid. South could trump his three clubs in dummy and discard his losing heart on the nine of spades.

Television and Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

AP Television-Radio Writer NEW YORK (AP) — "Francis Albert Sinatra does his thing" does seem to be a title of a show that is both arch and superfluous. But since Francis Albert does his thing—i.e., sing—very well, indeed, and since he brought some interesting performers along with him into our living rooms Monday night, it all worked out pleasantly.

The program, perhaps, lacked the class and dramatic simplicity of his first two specials and the musical impact of his show with Ella Fitzgerald. But there was plenty of singing by Sinatra, a couple of numbers by the decorative Diahann Carroll and more by The Fifth Dimension, a singing group with an interesting and sophisticated sound.

The star moved easily from his opening "Hello Young Lovers" through a number of standards and lesser known numbers. He made some small, easy jokes and joined Miss Carroll for some Negro spirituals. Then he worked with the singing group, all in the same light-hearted manner.

It was a show with a casual pace.

The CBS special was followed by the Carol Burnett Show, notable for a reunion of the star and her old colleagues, Garry Moore and Dward Kirby.

The three work nicely together—so nicely, in fact, one wished they had had better material for their sketches.

In the first, Moore and Kirby were dressed up as a pair of swinging old ladies visiting with Carol and Harvey Korman, who were doing one of their regular characterizations, the snappy old couple. The jokes, reaching for the double entendre more often than for witty repartee, were pretty dreary. Later, Carol and Dward engaged in a slapstick sketch in which Carol was knocked off her chair and stepped on by the two performers, but the sight of a man stepping on a girl's hand or pouring steaming coffee in her lap was more likely to make the viewer cringe in sympathy than roar with laughter.

NBC will drop two of its Saturday cartoon shows for children at the year's end, replacing them with a game show for youngsters and a filmed show about animals.

Study Sales Tax Exemptions

NEW YORK (AP) — The City Council Finance Committee must decide today whether the city's cattle ranchers and farmers should be exempted from state and city sales taxes.

The Lindsay administration has introduced legislation to have the local law conform with a change in the state tax law, exempting certain persons and businesses from the sales tax. Among them are truck farmers and ranchers.

The city's Economic Development Administration lists 115 farms encompassing 425 acres in the Bronx, Queens and Staten Island.

The agency has no figures on the number of cattle ranchers in the city.

Author Upton Sinclair Dead at 90

By LEW HEAD

Associated Press Writer BOUND BROOK, N.J. (AP) — Upton Sinclair, a prolific author who earned the title "King of the Muckrakers" during a 63-year career, is dead at the age of 90.

Sinclair died Monday at the Somerset Valley Nursing Home near here. A memorial service will be held at St. Paul's Episcopal church in Bound Brook at 11 a.m. Saturday.

During what he described as a 63-year battle for social justice, Sinclair wrote 80 full-length books. One of his best known works, "The Jungle," catapulted him to fame at the age of 28 in 1906.

The book exposed filthy conditions in the Chicago meat-packing industry and led to the nation's pure food laws. The book's message went around the world through translation as did most of his subsequent works.

It was one of the major reasons for the title "King of the Muckrakers." Sinclair's dedication to social reform incurred the enmity of powerful personalities and the support of many famous men.

Among his admirers were George Bernard Shaw, who recommended Sinclair for the Nobel Prize, and Albert Einstein, who wrote a poem to him.

Sinclair, a wiry 5-foot-7 man who kept in shape by playing tennis, was known for his energy even in his later years.

He was at the nursing home since December 1967, living within 15 miles of the farm in Princeton where he wrote "The Jungle."

In 1942 he won a Pulitzer Prize for his novel "Dragon's Teeth," a story set in Hitler's Germany where his books had been put on the bonfire a few years earlier.

The intense but cheerful socialist crusader, who lived to see changes that he had sought, had been ailing since July 1967 when he was operated on for an intestinal disorder.

When he was 83 he updated his autobiography and only then did a barrage of books, articles, pamphlets, letters cease—eight tons of them now stored in the Lilly Library at Indiana University. He relaxed, making an occasional appearance on the lecture platform.

Born in Baltimore Sept. 20, 1878, Sinclair began his writing life at 14, spurred greatly by a luckless though instructive childhood with kindly but impoverished Southern Aristocrat parents.

At one of his last lecture appearances, at the University of Buffalo, he got tired in the middle of his talk and sat down. He asked his son David, 67, to carry on.

"I did, but with somewhat less color than father," said David, a quiet speaking physicist who works for the Atomic Energy Commission in New York City. After five minutes father was on his feet again. He wowed

THE COMMONEST QUESTION

Dear Helen: I'm a Junior in high school, am five feet ten inches, weigh 165, and am not bad looking, but I'm completely dateless! Every once in a while a girl waves to me or something, but I'm too bashful to go over and talk to her, or even wave back. I can talk to guys okay, but I guess I just don't know how to approach a girl. I'll probably never get up nerve to ask one for a date. Any suggestions?—UP

Dear U.T.: What you need is self-confidence, and the best way to get it is from girls your own age. But since you seem to have such difficulty in meeting them, why not get one of your male pals to give you a hand. Also, why not join one of the recreational clubs at your school? In such groups guys and gals meet on very informal basis and you'll find your shyness wearing off in no time. Meanwhile, U.T., screw up your courage and take the "Hi" road. Some girl is bound to take it from there.

Dear Helen: You said guys would wear purses in about the same ratio that girls wore see-through dresses with nothing much under.

Around here you see a lot of fellows with purses, and they aren't "purse-swingers" either. I'm still looking for a see-through dress.

Maybe the guys are trying to get even because women hogged their styles, but I wish they would forget beads, medallions, purses, long hair, and other feminine frills. What's wrong with looking like a man?—FROM NORTHERN NEW JERSEY

Dear Helen: I'm going with a fellow who is a nut about hunting and fishing. We are planning on marriage next year but I'm not so sure.

He goes target shooting, doesn't call until he gets home, and then expects me to be ready in 10 minutes.

Last week end he didn't show up at all. He claims he was thrown in jail Friday night and kept there until Sunday. I think he is lying to me. He just went hunting.

Shouldn't I think twice about the students and got a big hand."

David, Sinclair's only child, was by a first wife, the former Meta H. Fuller of New York who died five years ago. The 1900 marriage ended in divorce in 1912 and she remarried, as did Sinclair two years later.

He wed Mississippi born Mary Craig Kimbrough, of whom he said after her death in 1961, "I had for half a century the love of one of the kindest, wisest, and dearest souls that ever lived upon this earth."

marrying a liar?—DIANA, BUT NOT OF THE HUNT

Dear Diana: In this case, better a liar than a jailbird, but think twice anyway. I don't believe you're cut out to be a sportman's wife.—FI

Dear Helen: I don't know how that woman managed it—getting a legal abortion when she didn't qualify under the law. I speak from experience. I was an unwed pe, and desperate enough to want an abortion. My parents tried, but they were turned down. The baby wasn't in danger, I wasn't ill, and I hadn't been forced.

Illegal—yes. But we were scared of that route.

I'm so very, very glad now, that I had my baby. She is the most wonderful thing that ever happened to me. When I think how close I came to never having known her, I shudder. Yes, I kept her, and now I'm engaged to a wonderful fellow who is going to adopt her.

Helen, I don't think abortions are morally wrong, and I know that sometimes they're the only way, but I'm glad we aren't going all-out to legalize them. Think how many women hate the idea of having a baby at first, and then, in about the sixth month, begin to realize how lucky they are!—ANOTHER LUCKY ONE

Hogs Place Four on All SWC Team

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer
DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Slash-and-dash Chris Gilbert of Texas, the leading Southwest Conference ground-gainer of all-time and slippery Jerry Levas, Southern Methodist's supreme pass-grabber, were unanimous choices on The Associated Press' 1968 All-Southwest Conference football honor roll.

Only Gilbert and Levas were the pick of all the conference coaches in balloting that was as close as the season was wild. The first team actually has 13 players since there were ties in the voting for center—Rodney Brand of Arkansas and Calvin Hunt of Baylor—and at fullback where Jackie Stewart of Texas Tech and Steve Worster of Texas were named.

In this age of offensive and defensive specialists both a first team offense and defense were selected. Texas placed the most players-five on the first squad. Mike Richardson, SMU's hard-running fullback, rounded out the rugged backfield with quarterback Edd Hargett of Texas A&M at the controls.

Hargett, who set conference career records for most passes, completions, yardage, offensive plays and total offensive yardage, narrowly beat out Arkansas' sophomore whiz Bill Montgomery for the man-under spot.

The coaches went for 210-pound junior Deryl Comer of Texas for the tight end post although Comer was seldom used as a pass receiver.

The tackle spots went to two excellent blockers—Richard "Truck" Stevens of Baylor and Terry May of SMU.

Seniors Jim Barnes of Arkansas and Don King of Texas Tech nailed down the offensive guard posts.

Comer and Hunt were the only juniors named to the offensive squad and Brand and Worster the only sophomores.

Tackle Loyd Wainwright of Texas and pass-thriller Jim Livingston of SMU headed up the vote getters on the defensive unit, both just narrowly missing being unanimous choices.

The leading defensive back vote getters were Livingston, Larry Alford of Texas Tech and Gary Adams of Arkansas.

Alford and Adams are primarily safeties but the coaches picked them at a variety of spots in the defensive backfield and they won honors on the most accumulative votes.

Bill Hobbs of Texas A&M and Cliff Powell of Arkansas won the two linebacker jobs as most coaches decided to vote for two linebackers and two guards this year.

TCU and Rolf Krueger of Texas A&M—although primarily used as a defensive tackle—were selected to the guard positions.

Leo Brooks of Texas joined teammate Wainwright at the other tackle post.

At ends, the coaches picked Richard Campbell of Texas Tech and sophomore sensation Mike DeNiro of Texas A&M, who hails from Youngstown, Ohio.

DeNiro was the only soph to make the defensive team. Powell, Alford, Brooks and Campbell are all juniors.

Gilbert and Levas, of course, drew the most attention. Levas, a second-team All-American last year, led the conference and the nation in pass catching this season as he teamed with sophomore quarterback Chuck Hixson to lead the Mustangs into the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl against Oklahoma.

Gilbert raced to his third year of gaining more than 1,000 yards rushing—an unheralded feat in the Southwest Conference. With the A&M game remaining, he needed only 75 yards Thanksgiving Day to vault into third place in the all-time NCAA rushing list.

Perhaps the most apt description of Gilbert's running style was one w/ter's comment: "A blinding flash at the moment of truth."

Gilbert, indeed, is the leading conference escape artist of all-time.

Chemist Was in Error, Board Says

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The Kentucky Racing Commission, which spared no expense in preparing for the hearing on Dancer's Image, still got caught short.

It had to borrow a magnifying glass from a spectator Monday in order to make a minute examination of one piece of evidence being challenged by a professor of pharmacology at the University of Louisville.

Chemist Was in Error, Board Says

On the witness stand was Dr. Charles Jarboe who, during five hours of highly technical testimony, reached these conclusions:

State chemist Kenneth W. Smith was in error when he reported phenylbutazone in the urine of Dancer's Image after the colt captured in the 1968 Kentucky Derby for Peter Fuller.

Smith's five tests to detect the drug were carried out improperly while conducting his examination.

Smith's findings are the main issue in the hearing, called after Fuller appealed a decision by Churchill Downs stewards to deny him the winner's purse of $122,600.

Phenylbutazone, an anti-inflammatory agent, is permissible but Kentucky's tracks for treatment, as long as its use is discontinued in time to prevent its detection in a horse at race time.

Jarboe was particularly critical of a series of microcrystal tests made by Smith from one sample of the urine.

While the commission examined a series of photographs which Smith presented to show such crystals, Jarboe argued that the photographs were not consistent with those shown in standard textbooks on this subject.

He also attempted to discredit Smith's interpretation of the readings he obtained on a spectrophotometer. This machine produces a curve which has a high and a low point, but in Smith's tests the low point or minimum curve did not register.

Jarboe told the commission that this could have been caused by two things—either the machine was malfunctioning or there was an error on the part of the operator in preparing the urine sample.

Smith, when he was questioned last week at the hearing, contended that the absence of this minimum curve made no difference in the final outcome of his results.

But he admitted he could have made a mistake, possibly while picking up a wrong bottle of chemical used in diluting the urine.

Jarboe said that in order for Smith to have been absolutely sure the drug was in the urine he should have run at least two more tests in using infra-spectroscopy and a thin layer of chromatography.

Smith said he does not use infrared in his analysis work nor does he have the equipment to make thin layer chromatography examinations.

The hearing is expected to run into next week before the five commissioners begin their deliberations.

Until they reach a decision, the winner's purse plus that of the second, third and fourth horses in the May 4 race, is being held in escrow by Churchill Downs.

Oil needs of the United States are expected to grow from the current 12.3 million barrels a day to 17.9 million by 1980.

Ohio State First, Porks End in 8th

By DAVE GOLLUST
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — "We deserved it," This was Ohio State Coach Woody Hayes' reaction to news Monday night that his unbeaten Buckeyes had been voted No. 1 in the Associated Press' major college weekly football poll.

Hayes learned of the ranking just before he addressed a crowd of 1,100 persons at OSU's annual banquet. He made the announcement and set of thunderous applause and cheers for his gridders, who were assembled around him on the speaker's platform.

"Without exception," Hayes said, "every man on the squad did the best job possible. They did 99 per cent of the work."

His Rose Bowl-bound Buckeyes crushed Michigan 50-14 Saturday to clinch the Big Ten title. OSU finished the regular season with a 9-0 record.

"I didn't have much to do with it actually," Hayes said, "I thought I coached better last year. But the boys made the difference."

"Our talent is diversified this season," Hayes said. "If we can't beat you one way, we'll beat you two other ways."

The Buckeyes topped the AP poll in 1954 and won the Rose Bowl that year, 20-7 over Southern California.

This year's Buckeyes will face Southern Cal, which slipped from No. 1 to No. 2 in this week's poll and closes its regular season Saturday against Notre Dame.

Hayes cautioned his team against overconfidence but said he doubted the top rating would affect his team's attitude in the Rose Bowl.

"We've done a great job so far but we can't get fatheaded or we will blow everything," Hayes said. "This has been a year of great victories but there is one more great victory left to win—in Pasadena."

Hayes said the clash with Southern California would pit his defense against the "best of offensive bli nb"he nation," O. J. Simpson.

"Our defense has to do its best, because we will be facing the best," Hayes said.

The top 20 teams, with first-place votes, records and total points:

Fighter Pilot Proves Speed Cross Country

NEW YORK (AP) — Mike Ryan, an aspiring fighter pilot who calls Okinawa home, has proven his speed afoot by capturing the NCAA cross country championship in a duel with two Eastern distance stars.

Ryan, a 5-foot-7, 145-pound junior at the Air Force Academy, beat Georgetown's Steve Stageberg by 60 yards Monday for the individual NCAA crown, with Art Dulong of Holy Cross third.

Villanova took the team title for the third straight year although its top finisher, Tom Donnelly, placed eighth in the six-mile test at Van Cortlandt Park. The Wildcats compiled a low score of 78 points, Stanford was second with 101 and Southern California third with 108.

Ryan, who was born in Ithaca, N.Y., but lists his home as Okinawa, where his father is a lieutenant colonel in the Air Force, took the lead from Dulong at the four-mile mark and won in 29 minutes, 16.8 seconds.

O.J. Already Heisman Trophy Winner

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The year's worst kept secret leaps out of the bag Tuesday when Southern California's phenomenal Simpson is formally designated as winner of the Heisman Trophy as the best college football player of the season.

The Down Athletic Club has called a noon (EST) press conference and arranged a long distance interview, obviously from Los Angeles.

With one more game to play before the Rose Bowl—the date in Los Angeles Saturday with Notre Dame—Simpson will delay his personal appearance and receipt of the trophy until next week.

The only unknown factor in this year's voting among a special panel is the vote differential.

Simpson is certain to be close to a unanimous choice, with halfback Leroy Keyes of Purdue the probable runner-up and all-in quarterback Terry Hanratty of Notre Dame likely third in the balloting.

There was strong sentiment last year for Simpson but the honor went to his cross-town rival, quarterback Gary Belan of UCLA.

The 6-2, 207-pound Simpson, a superb athlete with the effortless grace of a deer but the shattering power of a bull, cracked collegiate ball-carrying records this year in leading Southern Cal to nine straight victories and the No. 2 national ranking.

He has overshadowed the performances of such all-time great running stars as Red Grange, Tom Harmon, Glenn Davis, Jimmy Brown and Gale Sayers.

He has carried the ball this year 334 times, a record, and piled up 1,654 yards rushing, a new peak in that category. He has scored 21 touchdowns, the most in the nation.

A transfer from City College of San Francisco, Simpson has played only two seasons with USC but in that period has accomplished more than many top-grade athletes are able to gain in three.

His career record shows him with 3,069 yards rushing and 32 touchdowns. No athlete has ever gained more on the ground in two years.

O. J. has a good chance of grabbing two other season marks with a game left against Notre Dame. He needs only 17 points to overtake Jim O'Brien of Cincinnati, who has finished for the scoring lead. He needs to pick up 85 more yards in any fashion—running, pass-catching, kick-returning—to pass Eugene Morris of West Texas State as the nation's No. 1 all-purpose back of 1968. Morris has 1,957 yards, Simpson 1,872.

O. J., called "Orange Juice" by his mates, grew up with a brother and two sisters in a black neighborhood of San Francisco called Portero Hills. They were reared by their mother, a hospital worker.

In high school, he was a 5-10, 160-pound tackle. He frequently was in trouble with juvenile authorities. Later he fell under Washington Community Center, which headed him toward a college education.

Simpson is sure to be No. 1 in the pro football draft and O. J. says, "I've always longed for those pro dollars."

That was at training camp in August, and Anderson quickly took advantage of the break and won a starting spot at safety.

Nine Months of Captivity Is Ended

BANGKOK (AP) — Keith Hyland, the duck feather king of South Vietnam, arrived in Bangkok today after nine months in Viet Cong captivity.

Hyland, 64-year-old Australian, told newsmen the Viet Cong tried to release him twice in as many days following his capture in Saigon during the lunar new year offensive, last February. He said American air activity over the Communist-held portions of the city both times forced the Viet Cong to break off attempts to return him to government troops.

Instead Hyland eventually was evacuated from the city and made a month-long trek through the jungle to solitary confinement in a prison camp near the Cambodian border.

He was released by the Viet Cong Monday in Phnom Penh, the Cambodian capital, where he was reunited with his American wife. The couple flew to Bangkok and will remain there at least temporarily.

The Australian businessman said he believed he was released because of his failing health and a hearing condition that leaves him totally deaf from time to time. He ascribed the hearing condition to the closeness of U.S. B52 strikes during the trek to his prison camp and nervous tension. He said he also contracted dysentery while a prisoner.

It was not known when Hyland would see his daughter Larissa, who was born after he was captured in Cholon, the Chinese quarters of Saigon. Hyland has a large business there exporting duck feathers for cushions and mattresses. He said whether he returns to Saigon depends on talks he expects to hold in Bangkok with a partner in a few days.

Mrs. Hyland is the former Dorothy Lisa Ludwig, 28, of Mt. Kisco and Larchmont, N.Y. She had arrived in Phnom Penh from San Francisco several days ago.

Hyland was pale and thin, his hair almost snow-white, and his dark blue suit hung loosely on him.

He had lived in Southeast Asia since the end of World War II.

Texarkana Claims Only 29 Murders

TEXARKANA, Ark. (AP) — Texarkana authorities said Monday that 29 persons were murdered in the metropolitan Texarkana area in 1967 instead of 35 as reported by the FBI. A documentary on law and order prompted a recheck of homicide records. The FBI figures showed Texarkana's murders totaled 34.8 per 100,000 population — the highest figure in the nation.

Authorities said the FBI had come up with the higher totals because of duplicate figures filed by different agencies on the same death. The new figures reduce Texarkana's rate to 28.4 per 100,000 population, still the highest in the nation.

The economy of Finland comes closest of any country to depending entirely on trees.

DOG'S LIFE was restored after it was clinically dead for 21 minutes. Soviet junior scientist Yuri Fedorovich Gerya holds "Belka," a canine that had died from being in salt water for about 30 minutes in an experiment conducted at the Ukrainian Academy of Sciences Institute in Kiev. According to an official Soviet source, the dog was brought back to life and its conditional reflex organs started functioning normally.

City Helping Commuters in Strike

Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The city halted most road construction today to offer a helping hand to the 90,000 commuters of the Long Island Rail Road, shut down a second day by a trainmen's strike.

But the order to all contractors, utility companies and government agencies had little effect on the commuters, who again had to make their way to and from New York City through bumper-to-bumper traffic and jammed buses and subways.

Constantine Sidamon-Eristoff, city acting transportation administrator, announced this morning that he had curtailed construction on all major roadways in Queens, Brooklyn and Manhattan, the three boroughs most affected by the railroad strike.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa. — (NEA) — Robert Brown stands so big and his Fu Manchu mustache droops so insolently, a guy wouldn't think he cares. But Robert Brown cares. He has cared through September, through October and through November, whole months in which the Philadelphia Eagles lost every game they played.

And after this latest loss, Robert Brown entered the tunnel leading to the dressing room of the Eagles, and he stopped. The other players trooped through the door. Somber, but unemotional. Not Robert Brown. He stopped at a cement pillar, turned his back and stood with his head down on his tremendous chest. For 10 minutes, he meditated.

Later, when he finally joined the Eagles and unraveled the acres of gauze and foam around his fists, he said, "I don't want to talk about it."

The contradiction is that Robert Brown loves to talk, in a high-pitched cheerful voice that sounds strange coming out of that enormous body. A day later, the natural effervescence had returned and Bob was able to let the words frame his emotions.

"When you lose," he sighed, "the season lasts twice as long. You keep saying, 'This is the week.' Then you go down the drain again. I can't explain it, and I don't understand it. It's unreal."

"If we were terrible and lost 50-0, I wouldn't wonder. But we've played good. Three-to-six to Pittsburgh. One point to the Giants."

"The fans forget we want to win, too. This is the year I wanted to go big. I'm concentrating to regain what Ralph Neely has that belongs to me."

What Ralph Neely of the Dallas Cowboys has is intangible recognition as the all-pro offensive right tackle. Bob Brown relinquished the honor last year because he tore the ligaments in his right knee in the eighth game of the season and had to undergo an operation. All winter long, he strapped a metal plate on his leg and lifted it by the hour to regain the mobility in his knee.

"I think," he said, "I've been playing better than ever, and my weight's down. But you go 0-and-10 (the Eagles' record before they went out to play the Browns) and you wonder what happens. If you're evaluated fairly, I'm not worried."

Robert Brown's not worried because he has been a valid all-pro. He came into the National League in 1964, and a year later he was celebrated as the best offensive lineman in the game, a 300-pound giant who had no trouble staying ahead of the running backs. Because of the knee he is 25 pounds lighter. Mentally, the continual losing of the Eagles is no extra load to carry.

"My attitude," he said, "is this—I'm after something. I have a goal. I want my all-pro recognition again. I go into practice just as eager as I ever did. This is a profession, a business. I'm mercenary. You don't want to tell the kids, but you play strictly for money."

So Robert Brown would want you to believe he is impervious to the turmoil that has enveloped the Eagles, with owner Jerry Wolman on the verge of bankruptcy and Eagle fans waving "Joe Must Go" banners at coach Joe Kuharich.

"On Sunday," he said, "I'm out there to play football, not solve Wolman's problems. I'm one man. I can't tell how 39 guys feel. But I feel very strongly the attitude to win is the most integral part of winning. In spots, we have it; in others, we don't."

But he won't knock Kuharich, who became the Eagle coach the same year Brown became a pro.

"I feel for Joe," he said animatedly, "like you couldn't believe. As far as I'm concerned—and I'm not fearful for my job; I can play any place because a man like me is in demand—this man knows as much football as Vince Lombardi or George Allen. He's fielding a team under extremely adverse circumstances. We don't have the personnel to win."

Except, there's no doubt in his mind, at right tackle on offense.

Sealab 3 to Explore Sea's Bottom

By RALPH DIGHTON
AP Science Writer
LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Sealab 3 is off on a voyage to the bottom of the sea that may open a new world of riches and research to exploration.

The 57-by-12-foot seafloor habitat, which looks like a tank car with observation rooms where the wheels would be, has been carried by barge to a spot near San Clemente Island.

Sometime in the next few days it will be lowered 600 feet by crane to the Pacific Ocean bottom, where it will serve as working and living quarters for two months for five teams of eight to nine men.

The teams will spend 12 days each at such varied tasks as setting up an underwater trolley line, building a dry and lighted hut on the sea floor, starting a lobster farm with succulent transplants from Maine, and training porpoises and sea lions to fetch and carry.

A day or two after Sealab 3 touches bottom, the first team will start descending in diving bells, called personnel transfer capsules, capable of carrying three to four men at a time.

Members of the first team are Warrant Officer Robert A. Barth, 38, San Diego; Engineer L.C. Richard C. Bird, 31, Newton, N.J.; Aviation Ordnanceman L.C. Richard M. Blackburn, 29, Portland, Ore.; Blackberry L. Cannon, 33, and George B. Dowling, 42, civilian workers at the Navy Mine Defense Laboratory, Panama City, Fla.; Machinist's Mate L.C. Jay W. Myers, 24, Buffalo, N.Y.; Photographer's Mate L.C. John F. Reeves, 39, Ventura, Calif.; Lt. Cmdr. James Vorosmarti Jr., 33, Medical Corps, Palmerston, Pa.; and Dr. Richard A. Cooper, 32, bureau of commercial fisheries, Ann Arbor, Mich.

Sealab 3, a $10-million project, is the U.S. Navy's most ambitious attempt yet to add the world's submerged continental shelves—which range from a few miles to hundreds of miles in breadth—to its theater of operations.

Such depths are ideal hiding places for submarine refueling stations, missile launching sites and antisubmarine warfare gear. They also hold untold wealth in oil, minerals and scientific lore, exploitable when men learn to live and work for long periods at great depths.

Two earlier Sealab projects gave promise that it can be done.

Four men lived 11 days in Sealab 1 at a depth of 193 feet off Bermuda in 1964. A year later, in Sealab 2, three teams of 10 aquanauts spent 15-day periods 205 feet deep off La Jolla, Calif.

Sealab 3, at three times the previous depths, is the final experiment. From it will evolve mobile habitats—vehicles that can move like submarines or crawl along the bottom—carrying skilled technicians for salvage, rescue, construction and research.

Barber Adds to Winnings in Cajun Play

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP) — Rookie pro golfer Ron Cerrudo, a 24-year-old Californian, exceeded each of the goals he set for himself this year on the $5.6 million play-for-pay circuit.

"It's a bigger thrill than anybody knows," said Cerrudo Sunday after winning the $35,000 Cajun Classic, the year's final PGA tour event, with a record 270-18 under par—for 72 holes.

"I finished a runner-up in the National Amateur, the British Amateur and the Western Amateur—about every big amateur tournament you can name and was starting to get the feeling of a bridesmaid, wondering if I was ever going to win anything."

Cerrudo, registering his first tour victory, earned a $5,000 paycheck and finished four shots ahead of little-known Bobby Mitchell and cigar-smoking Charlie Sifford.

A stroke behind the second-place finishers were Miller Barber and David Stockton, whose check for $1,975 boosted him to $100,207 in total tour earnings this year and made him the 13th player to join the 100 Grand Club for 1968.

Barber had already won more than $100,000 before the Cajun Classic.

Hogs Place Four on All SWC Team

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
Associated Press Sports Writer
DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Slashed and dashed Chris Gilbert of Texas, the leading Southwest Conference ground-gainer of all-time and slippery Jerry Levias, Southern Methodist's supreme passer, were unanimous choices on The Associated Press' 1968 All-Southwest Conference football honor roll.

Only Gilbert and Levias were the pick of all the conference coaches in balloting that was as close as the season was wild.

The first team actually has 13 players since there were ties in the voting for center—Rodney Brand of Arkansas and Calvin Hunt of Baylor—and at fullback where Jackie Stewart of Texas Tech and Steve Worster of Texas were named.

In this age of offensive and defensive specialists both a first team offense and defense were selected. Texas placed the most players-five on the first squad. Mike Richardson, SMU's hard-running halfback, rounded out the rugged backfield with quarterback Edd Hargett of Texas A&M at the controls.

Hargett, who set conference career records for most passes, completions, yardage, offensive plays and total offensive yardage, narrowly beat out Arkansas' sophomore whiz Bill Montgomery for the man-under spot.

The coaches went for 210-pound junior Deryl Comer of Texas for the tight end post although Comer was seldom used as a pass receiver.

The tackle spots went to two excellent blockers—Richard "Truck" Stevens of Baylor and Terry May of SMU.

Seniors Jim Barnes of Arkansas and Don King of Texas Tech nailed down the offensive guard posts.

Comer and Hunt were the only juniors named to the offensive squad and Brand and Worster the only sophomores.

Tackle Loyd Wainwright of Texas and pass-thief Deluxe Jim Livingston of SMU headed up the vote getters on the defensive unit, both just narrowly missing being unanimous choices.

The leading defensive back vote getters were Livingston, Larry Alford of Texas Tech and Gary Adams of Arkansas. Alford and Adams are primarily safeties but the coaches picked them at a variety of spots in the defensive backfield and they won honors on the most accumulative votes.

Bill Hobbs of Texas A&M and Cliff Powell of Arkansas won the two linebacker jobs as most coaches decided to vote for two linebackers and two guards this year. Larry Adams of TCU and Rolf Krueger of Texas A&M—although primarily used as a defensive tackle—were selected to the guard positions.

Leo Brooks of Texas joined teammate Wainwright at the other tackle post.

At ends, the coaches picked Richard Campbell of Texas Tech and sophomore sensation Mike DeNiro of Texas A&M, who hails from Youngstown, Ohio.

DeNiro was the only soph to make the defensive team. Powell, Alford, Brooks and Campbell are all juniors.

Gilbert and Levias, of course, drew the most attention. Levias, a second-team All-American last year, led the conference and the nation in pass catching this season as he teamed with sophomore quarterback Chuck Hixson to lead the Mustangs into the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl against Oklahoma.

Gilbert raced to his third year of gaining more than 1,000 yards rushing—an unheralded feat in the Southwest Conference. With the A&M game remaining, he needed only 75 yards Thanksgiving Day to vault into third place in the all-time NCAA rushing list.

Perhaps the most apt description of Gilbert's running style was one writer's comment: "A blinding flash at the moment of truth."

Gilbert, indeed, is the leading conference escape artist of all-time.

Chemist Was in Error, Board Says

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The Kentucky Racing Commission, which spared no expense in preparing for the hearing on Dancer's Image, still got caught short.

It had to borrow a magnifying glass from a spectator Monday in order to make a minute examination of one piece of evidence being challenged by a professor of pharmacology at the University of Louisville.

On the witness stand was Dr. Charles Jarboe who, during five hours of highly technical testimony, reached these conclusions:

State chemist Kenneth W. Smith was in error when he reported phenylbutazone in the urine of Dancer's Image after the colt captured in the 1968 Kentucky Derby for Peter Fuller.

Smith's five tests to detect the drug were carried out improperly, quate records while conducting his examination.

Smith's findings are the main issue in the hearing, called after Fuller appealed a decision by Churchill Downs stewards to deny him the winner's purse of $122,000.

Phenylbutazone, an anti-inflammatory agent, is permissible mat Kentucky's tracks for treatment, as long as its use is discontinued in time to prevent its detection in a horse at race time.

Jarboe was particularly critical of a series of microcrystal tests made by Smith from one sample of the urine.

While the commission examined a series of photographs which Smith presented to show such crystals, Jarboe argued that the photographs were not consistent with those shown in standard textbooks on this subject.

He also attempted to discredit Smith's interpretation of the readings he obtained on a spectrophotometer. This machine produces a curve which has a high and a low point, but in Smith's tests the low point or minimum curve did not register.

Jarboe told the commission that this could have been caused by two things—either the machine was malfunctioning or there was an error on the part of the operator in preparing the urine sample.

Smith, when he was questioned last week at the hearing, contended that the absence of this minimum curve made no difference in the final outcome of his results.

But he admitted he could have made a mistake, possibly while picking up a wrong bottle of chemical used in diluting the urine.

Jarboe said that in order for Smith to have been absolutely sure the drug was in the urine he should have run at least two more tests in using infra-spectroscopy and a thin layer of chromatography.

Smith said he does not use infrared in his analysis work nor does he have the equipment to make thin layer chromatography examinations.

The hearing is expected to run into next week before the five commissioners begin their deliberations.

Until they reach a decision, the winner's purse plus that of the second, third and fourth horses in the May 4 race, is being held in escrow by Churchill Downs.

Oil needs of the United States are expected to grow from the current 12.3 million barrels a day to 17.9 million by 1980.

Ohio State First, Porks End in 8th

By DAVE GOLLUST
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — "We deserved it." This was Ohio State Coach Woody Hayes' reaction to news Monday night that his unbeaten Buckeyes had been voted No. 1 in the Associated Press' major college weekly football poll.

Hayes learned of the ranking just before he addressed a crowd of 1,100 persons at OSU's annual banquet. He made the announcement and set of thunderous applause and cheers for his gridders, who were assembled around him on the speaker's platform.

"Without exception," Hayes said, "every man on the squad did the best job possible. They did 99 per cent of the work."

His Rose Bowl-bound Buckeyes crushed Michigan 50-14 Saturday to clinch the Big Ten title. OSU finished the regular season with a 9-0 record.

"I didn't have much to do with it actually," Hayes said, "I thought I coached better last year. But the boys made the difference."

"Our talent is diversified this season," Hayes said, "if we can't beat you one way, we'll beat you two other ways."

The Buckeyes topped the AP poll in 1954 and won the Rose Bowl that year, 20-7 over Southern California.

This year's Buckeyes will face Southern Cal, which slipped from No. 1 to No. 2 in this week's poll and closes its regular season Saturday against Notre Dame.

Hayes cautioned his team against overconfidence but said he doubted the top rating would affect his team's attitude in the Rose Bowl.

"We've done a great job so far but we can't get fatheaded or we will blow everything," Hayes said. "This has been a year of great victories but there is one more great victory left to win—in Pasadena."

Hayes said the clash with Southern California would pit his defense against the "best of offensive bli nb) the nation," O. J. Simpson.

"Our defense has to do its best, because we will be facing the best," Hayes said.

Fighter Pilot Proves Speed Cross Country

NEW YORK (AP) — Mike Ryan, an aspiring fighter pilot who calls Okinawa home, has proven his speed about by capturing the NCAA cross country championship in a duel with two Eastern distance stars.

Ryan, a 5-foot-7, 145-pound junior at the Air Force Academy, beat Georgetown's Steve Stageberb by 60 yards Monday for the individual NCAA crown, with Art Dulong of Holy Cross third.

Villanova took the team title for the third straight year although its top finisher, Tom Donnelly, placed eighth in the six-mile test at Van Cortlandt Park. The Wildcats compiled a low score of 78 points. Stanford was second with 101 and Southern California third with 108.

Ryan, who was born in Ithaca, N.Y., but lists his home as Okinawa, where his father is a lieutenant colonel in the Air Force, took the lead from Dulong at the four-mile mark and won in 29 minutes, 16.8 seconds.

O.J. Already Heisman Trophy Winner

By WILL GRIMSLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The year's worst kept secret leaps out of the bag Tuesday when Southern California's phenomenal Simpson is formally designated as winner of the Heisman Trophy as the best college football player of the season.

The Down Athletic Club has called a noon (EST) press conference and arranged a long distance interview, obviously from Los Angeles.

With one more game to play before the Rose Bowl—the date in Los Angeles Saturday with Notre Dame—Simpson will delay his personal appearance and receipt of the trophy until next week.

The only unknown factor in this year's voting among a special panel is the vote differential.

Simpson is certain to be close to a unanimous choice, with halfback Leroy Keyes of Purdue the probable runner-up and ailing quarterback Terry Hanratty of Notre Dame likely third in the balloting.

There was strong sentiment last year for Simpson but the honor went to his cross-town rival, quarterback Gary Belan of UCLA.

The 6-2, 207-pound Simpson, a superb athlete with the effortless grace of a deer but the shattering power of a bull, cracked collegiate ball-carrying records this year in leading Southern Cal to nine straight victories and the No. 2 national ranking.

He has overshadowed the performances of such all-time great running stars as Red Grange, Tom Harmon, Glenn Davis, Jimmy Brown and Gale Sayers.

He has carried the ball this year 334 times, a record, and piled up 1,654 yards rushing, a new peak in that category. He has scored 21 touchdowns, the most in the nation.

Appointment of Finch Is Delayed

By BILL BOYARSKY Associated Press Writer SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — California Lt. Gov. Robert H. Finch's entrance into a top job in President-elect Richard M. Nixon's administration is being delayed because he and Gov. Ronald Reagan haven't agreed on his successor, sources close to both men indicated today.

Finch's friends said he has been offered a Cabinet job and wants to accept it—if he and Reagan can get together on a new No. 2 man for the California state government. Finch, who ran Nixon's 1960 presidential campaign, is one of the President-elect's closest advisers.

Reagan, one source said, has put forth several names—none of them acceptable to Finch—and Finch has offered names that Reagan can't accept. "It's the governor's appointment and the governor has to live with it," said Thomas Reed, a Reagan adviser and the California Republican national committee chairman.

"But I can't see anyone being appointed unacceptable to Finch," he said. He predicted an amicable settlement. Reagan is considered more conservative than Finch, and his political supporters generally belong to the California party's conservative wing.

Finch, who polled more votes than Reagan when both were elected in 1966, has said he wants to run for political office in California in the future, preferably for the U.S. Senate seat now held by Republican George Murphy.

But Murphy reportedly has told Finch he will seek another term in 1970—and Finch isn't likely to shatter party unity by challenging him in a primary.

Nine Months of Captivity Is Ended

By JOHN T. WHEELER Associated Press Writer BANGKOK (AP) — Keith Hyland, the duck feather king of South Vietnam, arrived in Bangkok today after nine months in Viet Cong captivity.

Hyland, 54-year-old Australian, told newsmen the Viet Cong tried to release him twice in as many days following his capture in Saigon during the lunar new year offensive, last February. He said American air activity over the Communist-held portions of the city both times forced the Viet Cong to break off attempts to return him to government troops.

Instead Hyland eventually was evacuated from the city and made a month-long trek through the jungle to solitary confinement in a prison camp near the Cambodian border. He was released by the Viet Cong Monday in Phnom Penh, the Cambodian capital, where he was reunited with his American wife. The couple flew to Bangkok and will remain there at least temporarily.

The Australian businessman said he believed he was released because of his failing health and a hearing condition that leaves him totally deaf from time to time. He ascribed the hearing condition to the closeness of U.S. B52 strikes during the trek to his prison camp and nervous tension. He said he also contracted dysentery while a prisoner.

It was not known when Hyland would see his daughter Larissa, who was born after he was captured in Cholon, the Chinese quarters of Saigon. Hyland has a large business there exporting duck feathers for cushions and mattresses. He said whether he returns to Saigon depends on talks he expects to hold in Bangkok with a partner in a few days.

Mrs. Hyland is the former Dorothy Lisa Ludlow, 28, of Mt. Kisco and Larchmont, N.Y. She had arrived in Phnom Penh from San Francisco several days ago. Hyland was pale and thin, his hair almost snow-white, and his dark blue suit hung loosely on him.

Texarkana Claims Only 29 Murders

TEXARKANA, Ark. (AP) — Texarkana authorities said Monday that 29 persons were murdered in the metropolitan Texarkana area in 1967 instead of 35 as reported by the FBI. A documentary on law and order prompted a recheck of homicide records. The FBI figures showed Texarkana's murders totaled 34.8 per 100,000 population — the highest figure in the nation.

Authorities said the FBI had come up with the higher totals because of duplicate figures filed by different agencies on the same deaths. The new figures reduce Texarkana's rate to 28.4 per 100,000 population, still the highest in the nation.

City Helping Commuters in Strike

Associated Press Writer NEW YORK (AP) — The city halted most road construction today to offer a helping hand to the 90,000 commuters of the Long Island Rail Road, shut down a second day by a trainmen's strike.

But the order to all contractors, utility companies and government agencies had little effect on the commuters, who again had to make their way to and from New York City and from New York City through bumper-to-bumper traffic and on jammed buses and subways.

Constantine Sidamon-Eristoff, city acting transportation administrator, announced this morning that he had curtailed construction on all major roadways in Queens, Brooklyn and Manhattan, the three boroughs most affected by the railroad strike.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa. — (NEA) — Robert Brown stands so big and his Fu Manchu mustache droops so insolently, a guy wouldn't think he cares. But Robert Brown cares. He has cared through September, through October and through November, whole months in which the Philadelphia Eagles lost every game they played.

And after this latest loss, Robert Brown entered the tunnel leading to the dressing room of the Eagles, and he stopped. The other players trooped through the door. Sombre, but unemotional. Not Robert Brown. He stopped at a cement pillar, turned his back and stood with his head down on his tremendous chest. For 10 minutes, he meditated.

Later, when he finally joined the Eagles and unraveled the acres of gauze and foam around his fists, he said, "I don't want to talk about it." The contradiction is that Robert Brown loves to talk, in a high-pitched cheerful voice that sounds strange coming out of that enormous body. A day later, the natural effervescence had returned and Bob was able to let the words frame his emotions.

"When you lose," he sighed, "the season lasts twice as long. You keep saying, 'This is the week.' Then you go down the drain again. I can't explain it, and I don't understand it. It's unreal."

"If we were terrible and lost 50-0, I wouldn't wonder. But we've played good. Three-to-five to Pittsburgh. One point to the Giants."

"The fans forget we want to win, too. This is the year I wanted to go big. I'm concentrating to regain what Ralph Neely has that belongs to me."

What Ralph Neely of the Dallas Cowboys has is intangible recognition as the all-pro offensive right tackle. Bob Brown relinquished the honor last year because he tore the ligaments in his right knee in the eighth game of the season and had to undergo an operation. All winter long, he strapped a metal plate on his leg and lifted it by the hour to regain the mobility in his knee.

"I think," he said, "I've been playing better than ever, and my weight's down. But you go 0-and-10 (the Eagles' record before they went out to play the Browns) and you wonder what happens. If you're evaluated fairly, I'm not worried."

Robert Brown's not worried because he has been a valid all-pro. He came into the National League in 1964, and a year later he was celebrated as the best offensive lineman in the game, a 300-pound giant who had no trouble staying ahead of the running backs. Because of the knee he is 25 pounds lighter. Mentally, the continual losing of the Eagles is no extra load to carry.

"My attitude," he said, "is this—I'm after something. I have a goal. I want my all-pro recognition again. I go into practice just as eager as I ever did. This is a profession, a business. I'm mercenary. You don't want to tell the kids, but you play strictly for money."

Sealab 3 to Explore Sea's Bottom

By RALPH DIGHTON AP Science Writer LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Sealab 3 is off on a voyage to the bottom of the sea that may open a new world of riches and research to exploration.

The 57-by-12-foot sea-floor habitat, which looks like a tank car with observation rooms where the wheels would be, has been carried by barge to a spot near San Clemente Island.

Sometime in the next few days it will be lowered 600 feet by crane to the Pacific Ocean bottom, where it will serve as working and living quarters for two months for five teams of eight to nine men.

The teams will spend 12 days each at such varied tasks as setting up an underwater trolley line, building a dry and lighted hut on the sea floor, starting a lobster farm with succulent transplants from Maine, and training porpoises and sea lions to fetch and carry.

A day or two after Sealab 3 touches bottom, the first team will start descending in diving bells, called personnel transfer capsules, capable of carrying three to four men at a time.

Members of the first team are Warrant Officer Robert A. Barth, 38, San Diego; Engineer L.C. Richard C. Bird, 31, Newton, N.J.; Aviation Ordnanceman L.C. Richard M. Blackburn, 29, Portland, Ore.; Berry L. Cannon, 33, and George B. Dowling, 42, civilian workers at the Navy Mine Defense Laboratory, Panama City, Fla.; Machinist's Mate L.C. Jay W. Myers, 24, Buffalo, N.Y.; Photographer's Mate L.C. John F. Reaves, 39, Ventura, Calif.; Lt. Cmdr. James Vorosmarti Jr., 33, Medical Corps, Palmerston, Pa.; and Dr. Richard A. Cooper, 32, bureau of commercial fisheries, Ann Arbor, Mich.

Sealab 3, a $10-million project, is the U.S. Navy's most ambitious attempt yet to add the world's submerged continental shelves—which range from a few miles to hundreds of miles in breadth—to its theater of operations. Such depths are ideal hiding places for submarine refueling stations, missile launching sites and antisubmarine warfare gear. They also hold untold wealth in oil, minerals and scientific lore, exploitable when men learn to live and work for long periods at great depths. Two earlier Sealab projects gave promise that it can be done.

Four men lived 11 days in Sealab 1 at a depth of 193 feet off Bermuda in 1964. A year later, in Sealab 2, three teams of 10 aquanauts spent 15-day periods 205 feet deep off La Jolla, Calif.

Sealab 3, at three times the previous depths, is the final experiment. From it will evolve mobile habitats—vehicles that can move like submarines or crawl along the bottom—carrying skilled technicians for salvage, rescue, construction and research.

Barber Adds to Winnings in Cajun Play

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP) — Rookie pro golfer Ron Cerrudo, a 24-year-old Californian, exceeded each of the goals he set for himself this year on the $5.6 million play-for-pay circuit.

"It's a bigger thrill than anybody knows," said Cerrudo Sunday after winning the $35,000 Cajun Classic, the year's final PGA tour event, with a record 270-18 under par—for 72 holes.

"I finished a runner-up in the National Amateur, the British Amateur and the Western Amateur—about every big amateur tournament you can name and was starting to get the feeling of a bridesmaid, wondering if I was ever going to win anything."

Cerrudo, registering his first tour victory, earned a $5,000 paycheck and finished four shots ahead of little-known Bobby Mitchell and cigar-smoking Charlie Sifford.

A stroke behind the second-place finishers were Miller Barber and David Stockton, whose check for $1,975 boosted him to $100,207 in total tour earnings this year and made him the 13th player to join the 100 Grand Club for 1968.

Barber had already won more than $100,000 before the Cajun Classic.

Such depths are ideal hiding places for submarine refueling stations, missile launching sites and antisubmarine warfare gear. They also hold untold wealth in oil, minerals and scientific lore, exploitable when men learn to live and work for long periods at great depths. Two earlier Sealab projects gave promise that it can be done.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa. — (NEA) — Robert Brown stands so big and his Fu Manchu mustache droops so insolently, a guy wouldn't think he cares. But Robert Brown cares. He has cared through September, through October and through November, whole months in which the Philadelphia Eagles lost every game they played.

And after this latest loss, Robert Brown entered the tunnel leading to the dressing room of the Eagles, and he stopped. The other players trooped through the door. Sombre, but unemotional. Not Robert Brown. He stopped at a cement pillar, turned his back and stood with his head down on his tremendous chest. For 10 minutes, he meditated.

Later, when he finally joined the Eagles and unraveled the acres of gauze and foam around his fists, he said, "I don't want to talk about it." The contradiction is that Robert Brown loves to talk, in a high-pitched cheerful voice that sounds strange coming out of that enormous body. A day later, the natural effervescence had returned and Bob was able to let the words frame his emotions.

"When you lose," he sighed, "the season lasts twice as long. You keep saying, 'This is the week.' Then you go down the drain again. I can't explain it, and I don't understand it. It's unreal."

"If we were terrible and lost 50-0, I wouldn't wonder. But we've played good. Three-to-five to Pittsburgh. One point to the Giants."

"The fans forget we want to win, too. This is the year I wanted to go big. I'm concentrating to regain what Ralph Neely has that belongs to me."

What Ralph Neely of the Dallas Cowboys has is intangible recognition as the all-pro offensive right tackle. Bob Brown relinquished the honor last year because he tore the ligaments in his right knee in the eighth game of the season and had to undergo an operation. All winter long, he strapped a metal plate on his leg and lifted it by the hour to regain the mobility in his knee.

owners to complain about
Of course, whenever a specific question comes up, the exact wording of the deed is crucial. For example, the restriction "and have a broader scope if it is referred to "structure" rather than "building."
In one case neighbors complained about a picket fence, erected on a strip of land that was supposed to be kept free of "structures of any kind." The court held that, while a ban on "buildings" might not have applied to the fence, the ban on "structures" did indeed.

It is for this reason that the person thinking of buying a home ought to understand the language of the restrictions in his deed. Then he will know, in advance, under what circumstances the neighbors can tell him "Thou shalt not."

In Which We Clear Up the Case of the Mystery Bird

Ever since I posted that "Found" notice Nov. 21 our town has been curious about the Mystery Bird Mayor Donal Parker and I picked up at the request of Mrs. W.L. Carter, 802 S. Elm St.

But we couldn't describe it publicly until someone had a chance to claim it as a pet — and now that four days have elapsed without claimants we can tell the entire story.

It's a wild Muscovy Duck, and just as rough and strange-looking as the picture on this page shows. He's two or three times as large as a Mallard, has a rough, multi-colored coat, a long neck, and a head like a turkey's, framed by whiskery feathers, topped by a rooster's comb.

Yesterday we uncovered some eye-witnesses who, had we known about them then, might have made Nov. 21's "Found" notice unnecessary. Mr. and Mrs. Fay James saw this bird come in from the sky and light on a building on S. Walnut St. — the same day, Nov. 20, that he wound up in Mrs. Carter's backyard, 802 S. Elm, where we captured him.

It wasn't much of a job for a couple of old chicken-catchers like Parker and your editor. Mr. Muscovy was ground-minded at the time, perhaps bushed from a long sky haul — so Parker and I just ran him into Mrs. Carter's garden fence and grabbed him.

Back at the game preserve he was mad about the lagoon, splashing around, diving, and passing to and fro under the waterfall — as though he hadn't seen water in a week. Then he came out and ate corn.

But the congregation received him coolly. Every time he strolled near them the 13 Mallards bunched up tightly. Naturally. The Muscovy looks like a big wild fighting man — which he is. But the duck doesn't live that likes to be alone. So, Mr. Muscovy took up with the geese — the Canadian Honkers and the domestic white Emends . . . a foursome big enough to whip an army of Russians. They let him trail around in their company, not so much tolerated as ignored.

About the Muscovy Duck, the books say:

He's a flight bird normally ranging from Mexico to the Argentine boundary of South Brazil.

Also, he is easily domesticated by bird fanciers. Capt. A. R. Peterson, Pine Crest Ave., retired from the Air Force, tells me he has a friend in the Rio Grande Valley who raises Muscovies as a hobby.

That checks with Parker's and my experience with the local duck. I held the duck while Parker drove the car back to the preserve. The duck gave up almost immediately and went to sleep during the drive — a lot more docile than a ride with any kind of goose, domestic or wild. . . where you always have a fair chance of being flogged.

ALC to Take Up Type of Budget Forms

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — An argument over what type of budget forms should be used by various state agencies was expected to continue today.

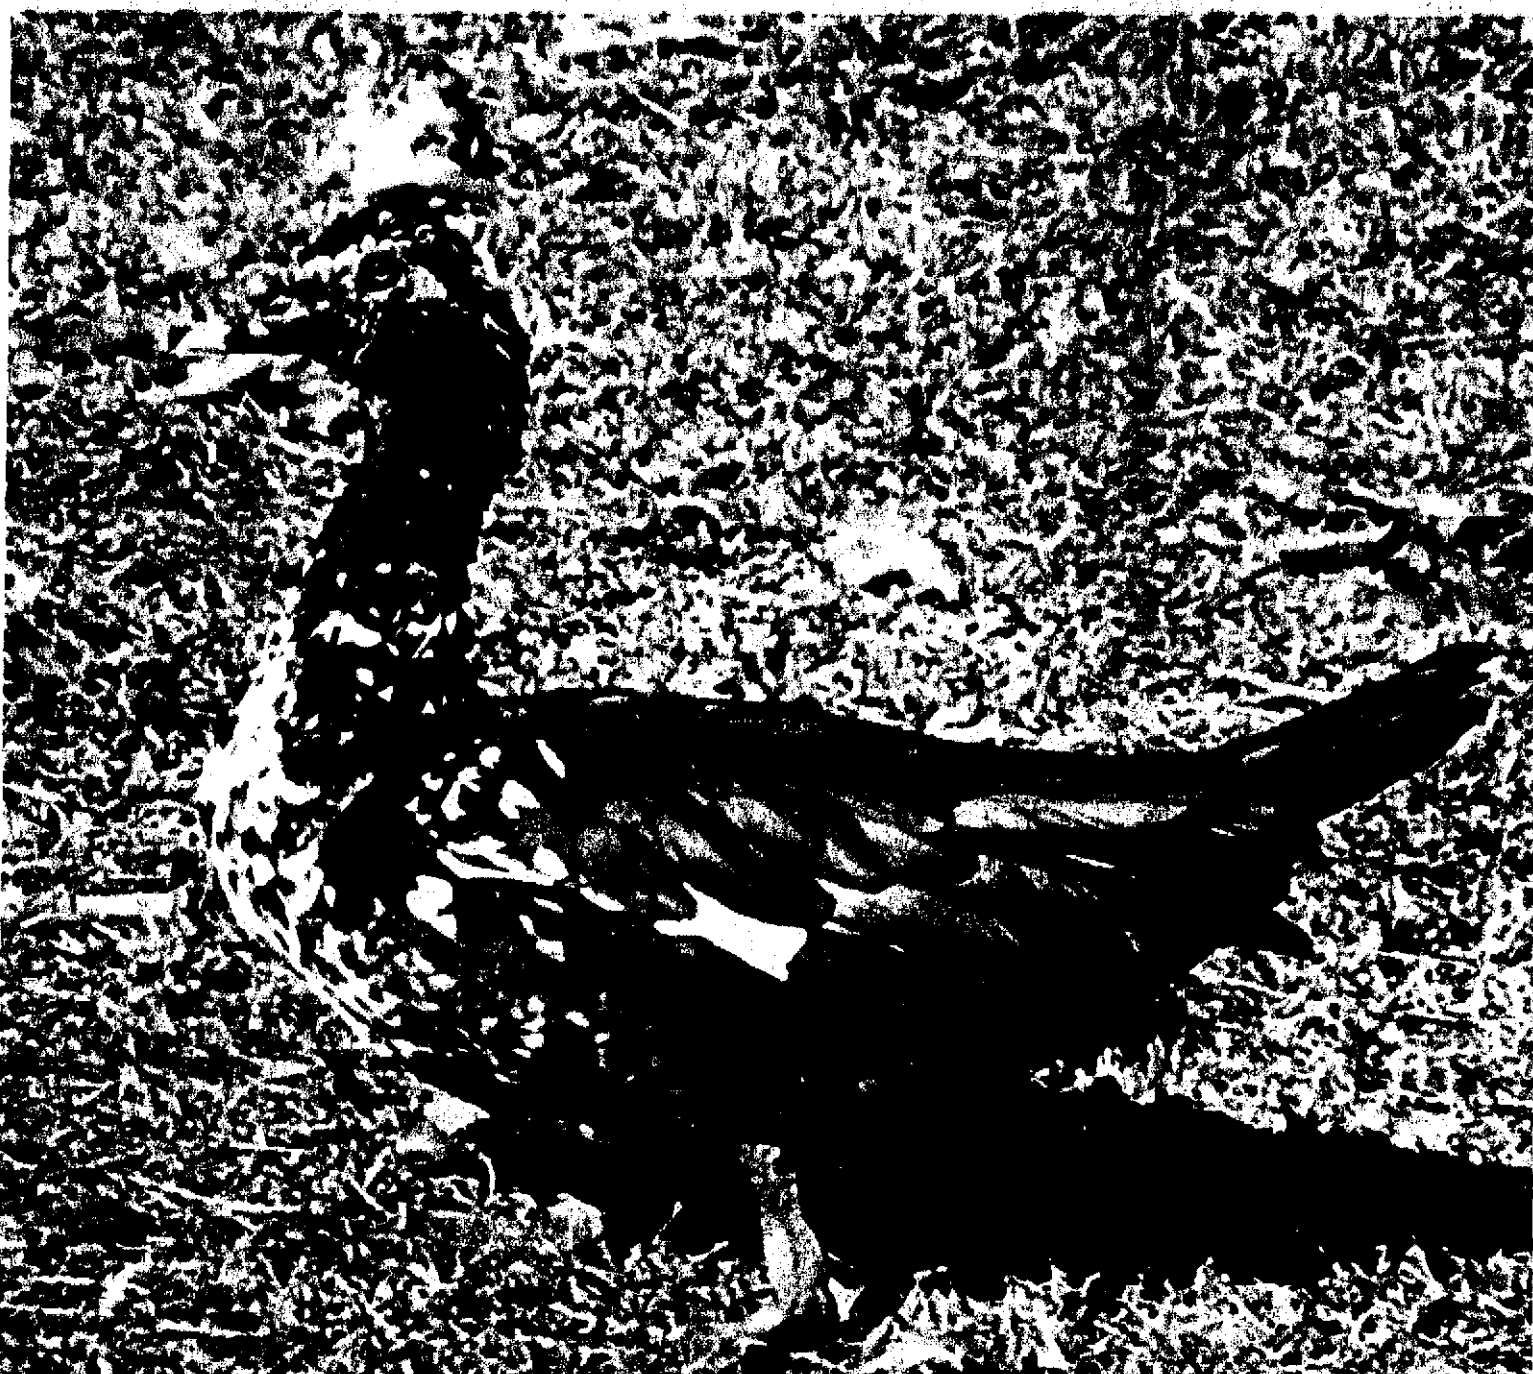

The Arkansas Legislative Council said Monday that a form, different from the one provided by the Department of Administration, should be used. The Council says the one proposed by the Administration Department is more difficult to understand.

Clarence E. Mike Frost, director of the department, said approval of a form other than the one proposed could ruin a job classification program scheduled to be presented to the General Assembly next year.

The primary difference in the forms was the addition of a space thereon for a line item appropriation for each salary within a department.

Rep. Ray Smith of Hot Springs said the new system was complicated and that it would cost an additional $7 million to implement the program.

Nixon Will Soon Name His Cabinet

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — President-elect Richard M. Nixon, continuing closed-door meetings with advisors and prominent Republican officeholders, apparently has just about made up his mind on some Cabinet appointments.

Although Nixon has said he'll make known no Cabinet choices before Dec. 6, GOP Sen. John G. Tower of Texas emerged from a Monday conference with the President-elect and acknowledged they'd talked about possible Cabinet selections, Democrats as well as Republicans.

Asked if it would be accurate to say Nixon has not yet decided on any Cabinet nominees, Tower carefully responded that Nixon indicated no final decisions to him — leaving wide open the suggestion that the incoming chief executive has privately reached, or is very close to, some final choices.

Tower, one of three prominent Republicans to meet with Nixon during the day, gave a thumbnail description of the kind of Cabinet he believes is being sought by Nixon: "People of great professional competence" whose ideas are not incompatible with those of the President.

Wives Figure Husbands Slowly Change From Dr. Jekyll to Mr. Hyde

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — There is no institution that changes a man more than marriage.

And, alas, not always for the better. Isn't that true, ladies? As a matter of fact, one of the big surprises of the long matrimonial journey to most women is how their husbands slowly but almost inevitably transform themselves from Dr. Jekyll to Mr. Hyde.

And the trend seems to be irreversible in most cases. There is usually no turning back for a husband once he's passed the point of no return on his road to monsterdom. The wife is stuck with a surly brute forever.

Just how does marriage actually change a man? Well, of course, there are as many endless variations to the common pattern as there are husbands,

In the Daily Bread column of Nov. 21 the editor reported capture of a mystery bird Nov. 20 by Mrs. W.L. Carter, 802 S. Elm St., who turned it over to the editor for his miniature wildlife preserve on S. Walnut St.

Uncertain whether it was some local pet or a wild creature that had dropped in from the sky lanes the editor posted a "Found" notice in his column Nov. 21 — since when four days have elapsed with no claimants.

So here is the identification: It's a Muscovy Duck, and we now have eye-witnesses that it's a wild creature which flew in here as an independent agent. Further details are in today's Daily Bread column.

GOP Thinks Nixon to Help Streamline the Bureaucratic Thicket

By JACK KNEECE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two Republican members of Congress say they'll seek Nixon administration backing for efforts to streamline what one calls the "bureaucratic thicket" of federal government.

Sen. James B. Pearson of Kansas said Monday he planned to reintroduce early in January enabling legislation to set up another Hoover commission.

Pearson cosponsored similar legislation in the last Congress

"I was pleased to hear Richard Nixon point to the need for such a commission during the campaign and I plan to consult with him on this matter at the appropriate time," said Pearson, in an interview.

"Considering that the bill passed the Senate last session and in view of Mr. Nixon's attitude I think the chances for final passage in 1969 are excellent," he said.

Rep. William V. Roth of Delaware said Monday he has spoken to Nixon about his own efforts in a similar vein and "Nixon said he is with me all the way."

Roth spent months trying to catalogue the number and variety of various grant-in-aid and other federal assistance programs and ran into a series of roadblocks by various agencies.

Roth said there are such a bewildering variety of federal aid programs that even congressmen have difficulty determining what is available.

French Cut to Prevent Devaluation

By STEPHENS BROENING
Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) — Premier Maurice Couve de Murville today readied an austerity program including a $1 billion cut in government spending for presentation to the National Assembly in the second phase of President Charles de Gaulle's fight to prevent devaluation of the franc.

The belt-tightening program was designed to cut the government deficit almost in half, increase exports, improve the tax collection machinery and prevent rises in wages and prices. It was a companion to currency regulations announced Monday to keep speculators from shipping more francs out of the country in wholesale lots.

The only advance word on the austerity program came from De Gaulle himself in his broadcast Sunday night. He said reductions would be made in subsidies to nationalized industries and in previously planned expansions of the "civil, military and university" programs.

De Gaulle also said wages and prices would not be allowed to rise and export industries would be aided by removal of "certain taxes which weigh excessively on their returns."

Couve de Murville fills in the details for the National Assembly today.

Meanwhile, as the new currency regulations went into effect, squads of security police manned border crossings and airports and searched travelers to make sure they took out no more currency than the relatively small amounts decreed Monday. Air lines and tourist agents reported heavy cancellations. "You can't go to New York for 21 days with $140 in your pocket," said one, that being the maximum amount al-

Administration Says Saigon Will Join the Paris Peace Talks

By SPENCER DAVIS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Administration sources expect Saigon to announce in the very near future it will join expanded Paris peace talks, ending a boycott that has stalled negotiations for almost a month.

High State Department sources viewed the situation, however, with "utmost caution" and none would venture a guess on whether an announcement might come in hours or days.

Informants pointed out that once before, on Oct. 31, the United States had every reason to believe South Vietnam President Nguyen Van Thieu had agreed to the "package" of halting the bombing of North Vietnam and transforming the bilateral

Mystery Man From Saigon in Paris

By ARTHUR L. GAVSHON

PARIS (AP) — A mystery envoy from Saigon was reported in Paris today preparing for the arrival of Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky. This indicated South Vietnam's boycott of the Paris peace talks is nearing its end.

Qualified informants said if all goes well Ky is likely to arrive with a South Vietnamese delegation by next week, clearing the way for the resumption of the negotiations that have been suspended since Nov. 6.

An American-South Vietnamese agreement on the terms of Saigon's participation in the conference is imminent, according to reports from both Saigon and Washington. President Nguyen Van Thieu is expected to announce his government's readiness to participate in the Paris talks with the United States, North Vietnam and the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front in a few days.

Informants said the mystery man from Saigon arrived during the weekend to arrange the many protocol details connected with the reception and accommodation of the South Vietnamese vice president.

He was reported to be a high official in Ky's own office, but the South Vietnamese mission withheld his name "for reasons of security."

High State Department sources in Washington viewed the situation with "utmost caution" and none would venture a guess whether announcement of a U.S.-South Vietnamese agreement might come in hours or days.

DMZ Invaded by Allies to Halt Enemy

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. Marines and South Vietnamese infantrymen invaded the demilitarized zone today for the first time since President Johnson called the bombing halt Nov. 1.

American infantrymen, planes and artillery were reported fighting an enemy force 500 yards inside the southern half of the zone just above Con Thien. The South Vietnamese reported at least three North Vietnamese killed in a brief clash seven miles to the east, about a mile inside the DMZ northwest of Glo Linh.

By late afternoon there were no reports of any U.S. or government casualties.

The U.S. Command said the Marines entered the DMZ because intelligence reports indicated enemy activity creating a possible threat to U.S. forces at Con Thien.

A spokesman said about 9:50 a.m. a reconnaissance patrol from the 3rd Marine Division ran into enemy troops that fired assault rifles and .50-caliber machine guns from fortified positions. The patrol returned the fire, and an hour later Marine reinforcements pushed into the DMZ.

The spokesman said the fact that the Leathernecks made contact "is a fairly good confirmation" of intelligence reports indicating a threat to Con Thien.

South Vietnamese headquarters said it sent a reconnaissance patrol into the southern half of the DMZ "to locate enemy mortar positions that have been firing on South Vietnamese units operating south of the DMZ."

Decision Soon on Housing, Renewal Plan

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The office of Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., said Monday it would be about seven days before the Housing and Urban Development Department makes a decision about the designation of Little Rock and North Little Rock as participants in the Model Cities program. Little Rock was selected to participate in the program Thursday, but was removed from the list of cities later in the day when the Justice Department filed a suit against the Little Rock Housing Authority had not removed segregation through its plan of assigning tenants of public housing facilities.

The authority voted Friday to put a new plan into effect, with some conditions.
